A Polite People.

The city of Lucknow, India, is renowned for the politeness of its people, exceeding, it would seem, that of the French, who are generally regarded as the most polite people in the world. A correspondent, writing from the spot, gives a ludicrous illustration of the extent to which the natives carry their ideas of courtesy. Two native gentlemen, on their way to the railway station, accidentally fell into a ditch. One would suppose that both would have been on their feet in a twinkling; but no, the law of politeness interfered, and one said to the other,—"When your honor rises then I may get up."

"No, your honor should get up first," replied the other.

"Never; how could I take precedence of your honor?"

And thus the contest went on for an hour, it is said, because neither gentlemen would consent to violate the laws of good breeding.

The Perfumes Used by the Egyptians.

The consumption of essences must have been enormous at the highest tide of Egyptian splendor, for the people were actually enjoined to perfume themselves on Fridays; corpses were anointed with aromatic essence; sherbets and sweetmeats were flavored with fine vegetable extracts; perfumes filled the air in every well-to-do house, and saturated the letters and presents which were constantly being exchanged. The ladies bathed in perfumed water, the men used scented oils for the hair, and both made use of red, yellow and green soap.

During great festivals incense was burned in all the streets, so that even the poorest might be regaled by the mere act of breathing. Nor was there any lack of narcotics. The mode of preparing opium, introduced from Syoot, in Upper Egypt, was well known, and the Sultan Beybars promulgated several edicts prohibiting the use of hashish, a stupefying and intoxicating preparation of Indian hemp. In spite of the prophet's prohibition, the juice of the grape continued to be indulged in. Alcohol (as its name indicates) is an Arab discovery, and beer—the favorite beverage of the ancient Egyptians—was also brewed and drunk under the Caliphs. Many a jovial song in praise of wine was sung by Arab poets, and in early times many Arabs would by no means admit that the prophet had forbidden its use. In an old MS copy of The'alibi it is said, "The prophet—may God bless him and accept him—permitted wine and mercifully allows us to strengthen ourselves with it at our meals, and to lift the veil of our cares and sorrows."
